FAVOR NINE MONTHS SCHOOL TERM IN ALBERTA DISTRICTS

Annual Meeting of Glenwood School District—Asplund Re-elected

(From Our Own Correspondent) GLENWOOD, Jan. 11.—The annual meeting of the Glenwood School District was held in the new schoolhouse on Saturday, January 9. Chester Asplund, chairman of the board, was in charge. The other trustees, C. J. Wight and Bert Quinton, with the secretary, Mrs. E. L. Stringham, and 50 ratepayers were present.

The secretary read the teachers' statement, which showed that there had been 180 teaching days and an enrollment of 160 students during the past year.

Next came the financial statement and the auditor's report. Funds received during the year were $5,363.66, expended $5,323.85. The cost of the year's operation had been $6,180.80. These reports after some discussion were accepted. The teachers' reports were read next.

At 3:15 it was announced that there would be an hour for nominations for a new trustee to fill the vacancy of Mr. Asplund whose term had expired. The names of G. Asplund and E. G. Wood were nominated. Mr. Asplund received 25 votes and Mr. Wood received 18 votes. Mr. Asplund being re-elected for a new term of three years.

Inasmuch as there is said to be a cut of one month's government money it was moved that a resolution from this school district go in to the U. F. A. convention asking that the year's term of school be cut to a term of nine months in place of ten because of shortage of finances and the small collection of school taxes.

It was decided that a good shed or a suitable stable be built on the school lot for the housing and protection of 18 head of horses the ranchers are using to bring the children in to school. This is to be built by contribution to purchase the material and also the labor.

MACKENZIE KING

(Continued From Front Page.) later, overburdened as he was, appeared unwilling to trust the important office of finance minister to any one but the Conservative party. Or, on the other hand, suggested Mr. King, it might be "that not a single member of the Conservative party can be found who is ready to accept office under him."

Condemns Secrecy

But it was in connection with the railway situation that the Liberal leader voiced his strongest protest. The holding of secret sittings, by the commission on transportation, which is at present meeting in Winnipeg, he said, was "condemned in the most definite terms. 'Wholly indefensible' was the phrase used by Mr. King in dealing with these secret sittings.

The Canadian National was not to be made "the scapegoat for the condition into which Mr. Bennett's policies have served to bring this country," Mr. King asserted strongly. It must not be caused to "serve the ends of any transportation monopoly in Canada." If either of those things were permitted, the Liberal leader said, indignation would be aroused from coast to coast which would make Mr. Bennett regret that he had ever assumed office. The Liberal party, Mr. King declared amid applause, "will stand like a rock against every proposition, however camouflaged, which will destroy the independence and integrity of the Canadian National."

Recalls 1930 Election

The Liberal leader referred at the outset of his speech to the fact that the occasion on which he spoke in Winnipeg was the same as that of 1930. At that time the contest was in the throes of an election campaign. The day on which he had addressed a Winnipeg audience was July 15. This was a memorable day in the history of Manitoba, and on that occasion, Mr. King recalled, he had the privilege as Prime Minister of Canada, of "transferring from the surplus revenues of the federal treasury, a cheque of over four and a half million dollars to the premier of this province."

"It was a cheque," remarked Mr. King, "made payable, not out of borrowed monies, but, as all federal government cheques were during the last eight and a half years of Liberal administration, out of monies in hand, current revenues, a fitting reminder of the times, and of a contrast which is all too apparent today."

Briefly reviewing the position of Canada just prior to the last general election, Mr. King stated that the position taken by Conservative members in the House of Commons at that time was that trade was war and that a "red-blooded attitude" was essential. "The view of this party was that a 'cool-headed' attitude was likely to be much more beneficial in the end. The Liberal party recognized that the prosperity of Canada depended on free trade. Canada needed a minister of finance, Mr. King asserted. Balancing the budget was a vital necessity. Conditions in this country were far too critical to permit of having acting ministers in the offices of finance and labor, not to speak of other departments.

Warning About C. N. R.

Briefly, Mr. King dealt with the railway problem. He condemned in unmeasured terms the holding of sittings in secret by the royal commission on railways. "Do not hesitate to say that the secret sittings with respect to matters pertaining to one of the great railway systems of this country is something that is wholly indefensible," he said. "It is a part of the star chamber method of proceeding which has led to the tariff being manipulated as it has."

Wanted Restored Old Tariffs

In promising to restore the tariff to former levels, said Mr. King, he would also promise to restore the advisory board on tariff and taxation. He referred to the "battered and shuddering sort of way" in which the present government made fiscal and financial pronouncements one day, only to change them the next. "There is much to indicate that in most things he acts first and thinks afterwards," he said with reference to the prime minister.

Government Grants

"Our school, along with the two other high schools, would be in line to take advantage of grants offered by the department of education, which are being advocated for Alberta town and Consolidated districts in aid of technical education. There are a large number of educational projects the department is prepared to help finance, such as motor mechanics for boys and household economics for girls. This venture is not new as it has been carried on for years in other parts, and we firmly believe our prairie children are entitled to these advantages as well as any others."

Condemns Economic Imperialism

"From the Liberal point of view, economic nationalism and economic imperialism are both wrong, and we might as well state the matter plainly, and face the issue boldly. If economic nationalism is to be the inspiration and objective of our policies, we might as well abandon at once all thoughts of world trade, and expect instead to incur, in our international relations, the enmity of every other nation, upon earth, not excepting the nations of the British commonwealth, which includes Britain itself. Equally, if the inspiration and objective of our policies are to be an economic imperialism—an enlarged economic isolation, only more pregnant with dangers from within and from without—we may expect to find very much in the way of strife and discord between the different nations of the British commonwealth, and at the same time a world situation greatly aggravated by the contending economic units on a scale hitherto unparalleled."

Unemployment Plague

In the matter of unemployment relief, he charged, there had been "much that is little short of wanton waste, and anything but what there should be in the way in which public moneys have been disbursed." At the last session of parliament, the prime minister had demanded authority to spend from the public treasury any sum he pleased, and was absolutely indifferent to a demand for control of this unlimited expenditure by a representative commission rather than by the government itself, through one of its ministers. Today the minister in charge had broken down in health, and the department mainly responsible for the "colossal expenditure" was without other than an acting head. The country would be deprived of useful information which a commission would have obtained. Next one constructive suggestion which would be of assistance in the drafting of a measure of unemployment insurance would be preserved,

WILTSE MOVES FOXES TO B. C.

Lethbridge Owner Will Carry on Farm in Creston District

(From Our Own Correspondent) CRESTON, B. C., Jan. 12.—Fox farming of considerable commercial scale is being undertaken in this district by W. P. Wiltse, until lately engaged in the same pursuit near Lethbridge, who has just arrived here with the last of his stock of foxes, which totals over 100 animals. He has purchased 23 acres of very desirable fox farm land at the junction of Arrow Creek and Goat River, a few miles east of here, and has constructed temporary pens in which to place the animals until construction of the individual pens can be completed.

The site of the farm near the running water and amidst the small timber is as near the natural as could be desired, and Mr. Wiltse believes the climate here is superior to Alberta. At least the fur has taken on a deeper black tinge this winter than was the case in past winters.

While meat is the basic diet for these animals, they also thrive on fruit, and the establishment of the farm will provide an outlet for some of the cull apples, a local rancher having already disposed of two tons of apples for fox feed.

The arrival of Mr. Wiltse and his family at Arrow Creek is doubly welcome. With his children available there will now be enough youngsters in that area to warrant the establishment of a public school, which has long been wanted.

Mrs. Martha Hinman Buried at Cardston; Tributes are Voiced

(From Our Own Correspondent) CARDSTON, Jan. 11.—Mrs. Martha Cook Hinman, wife of Andrew Hinman of Cardston, was buried here on Sunday, Jan. 10, after one of the largest funerals held in many months in the stake tabernacle. She was a daughter of James Cook, one of the old-timers of this country, and her husband, Andrew Hinman, is a son of Patriarch Henry L. Hinman, one of Cardston's most revered pioneers, now deceased, but still held high in the memories of all. The family on both sides have numerous posterity who with the many friends, filled the tabernacle almost to the doors on Sunday afternoon.

The services were under the direction of the Cardston Second ward bishopric, with Bishop W. E. Fisher presiding. P. Christensen of the Cardston undertaking parlors had charge of the funeral arrangements. The opening hymn, a mixed quartette, "Some Blessed Day," was sung by Mr. and Mrs. John S. Smith, Mrs. Thelma S. Smith and Byron F. Tanner. Opening prayer by H. J. Matkin was followed by an address by President Z. W. Jacobs, who particularly thanked all who had assisted the family during the long illness and final death of the wife and mother. Especially did he mention the devotion of Mrs. Fisher, a sister of the deceased lady, who had come all the way from Mima, Pa., to be at the bedside of her sick sister, who had remained for weeks and weeks while the ebbing life departed. And to Helen Hinman, the eldest daughter of the family, whose labors had never ceased day or night, and whose devotion to her mother was unstinted.

John S. Smith, also a member of the stake presidency, was the second speaker. He eulogized the life and labors of Mrs. Hinman, declaring that she had built a character, one of man's greatest achievements in life. Mrs. Eda Wood, accompanying the pallbearers consisted of Henry Schultz, William L. Lindemann, Henry Tomfohr, George Tomfohr, Prosper C. Le Duc, and George R. Thompson, all of whom were particular friends of the family.

Mrs. Thomas U. F. W. A. Head At Glenwood

(From Our Own Correspondent) GLENWOOD, Jan. 11.—The Glenwood U. F. W. A. local held their reorganization meeting on Thursday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fortinere Greene. The executive, Mrs. Rachel Archibald, president; Mrs. Doris Law, vice-president; and Mrs. Rosanna Greene, were released. Mrs. Sarah Thomas was chosen as the new president; Mrs. Nellie J. Kenzie, vice-president; and Mrs. Rosanna Greene re-elected as secretary; directors, Mrs. S. L. Stringham, Mrs. Eula Butler, Mrs. Lily G. Archibald and Mrs. Pearl Thomas.

The secretary read news letters on "Peace" and "Disarmament." Mrs. Greene was instructed to write to the central office for the year's program; and also to the University of Alberta for debate material. Mrs. Law was in charge of the meeting. Luncheon was served by the hostess.

Snowfall Heavy

(From Our Own Correspondent) MAGRATH, Jan. 12.—Temperatures receded to zero and freezing last night, during a north blizzard which began yesterday afternoon, following two days of warm weather which melted snow and ice and began setting farm reservoirs. About three inches of fresh snow lay on the level this morning, with drifted snow in coulees and among trees.

Boundary Area Near Creston Infested—Prey on Deer

(From Our Own Correspondent) CRESTON, B. C., Jan. 11.—Just as soon as the necessary joint provincial-federal sanction is given a party of Idaho hunters under the direction of L. Guiles of Bonners Ferry, who has assembled a pack of wolf hounds, is ready to invade the head waters of Corn Creek, just across Kootenay River from Creston, to take a pack of seven cougars, preferably alive, which is a specialty of Mr. Guiles, who about four years ago took five of the cats near Fort Hill, just south of here, and sold them to parks and zoos on the American side.

The elimination of the cougar is desired by both U.S. and B.C. authorities. They are in close proximity to the U.S. boundary and are not wanted there, due to the extensive sheep raising operations in Boundary county, which adjoins Creston district to the south.

Locally their destruction will be welcomed, as it is estimated that in a season one cougar will kill 50 deer, and the presence of these animals at Corn Creek is held accountable for the poor deer shooting in that area this year, which was the biggest deer kill in local history.

Creston Rod and Gun Club has approved of the expedition, and some of its members expect to take part in the hunt, which is sure to be exciting where the endeavor is made to take the animals alive.

term. Snow fell for a few hours, leaving two inches on the level. The weather over Sunday continued mild, but cloudy.

COLDS must be driven out from within

The cold germ is not an ordinary germ but an invisible microbe. Science knows that it is a poisonous infection that gets into the system and multiplies rapidly—often causing other serious ailments. Internal infection must be destroyed and expelled from within. Bromo Quinine tablets have won the recognition of the entire civilized world as the safe and proven remedy for colds.
